Re: (Non-) Identification for Sovereigns

Winsum, 18. June 2012

I write to you with regard to the matter of identification for Sovereigns.

I can imagine they don't have to use passports or any such document when they'd like to enjoy the service of travel companies, since they tend to live outside of 'normal' statutory laws.

I would like to know how to go about in such matters, since I have claimed my birthrights by means of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights ... to which, if I may add, the Queen of the Netherlands has agreed, since I seemed to have been under her rule until then.

Now that I have claimed my rights as a Man by means of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, I have returned all documents that had been issued by the Dutch Government. Therefore I won't be able to use their passport anymore (or any of their identification cards for that matter). However I would like to be able to go around the world as I please, using services of travel companies for example.

Since I am now a Sovereign I live outside of statutory law systems and I cannot provide any company with a passport or any such document used for identification created by any state/country. I would be happy though to provide any travel company with a copy of my Life Birth Record as means of identification and/or willing to sign contracts/treaties with them to give them all the assurance of my good faith and good intentions as you may need.

Therefore in conclusion, would you be so kind as to let me know how I as a Sovereign Man would be able to make use of the services provided by travel companies?

I take it that you understand all I have stated above, in case you would need more clarification I would be happy to provide you more information to do so.
